PETER CHANG

proudly displays the largest summer flounder he had caught to date (August 19) which fishing with fellow member Malcom Emery who convinced Peter to join RISAA.

“This has motivated me to get a proper scale and ruler,” said Peter.

COTE LAFLAMME

displays a 10 pound, 30 inch doormat fluke that he caught on July 2 off South County RI.

“It was a very thick speed bump off the bottom,” said Cote.

“She was released to consume, grow bigger, and produce future fluke.”

Junior Member

SOPHIA GARZOLI

with a 12.3 pound bluefish that she caught on October 2 file fishing with her dad, Dave, off the center wall at Point Judith near the east gap. It hit a top water Spook plug.

DAVID POLLACK

displays a nice false albacore that he landed last October while fly fishing off Point Judith. Dave said that as the linke came up off the deck it included a knotted clump about 20 feet short of the backing. “I was lucky enough that with the rod pointed directly at the fish and the line in my hand to slow it down a bit the knot passed through the guides and the fish kept going,” said David. When the fish finally came to the net he saw it was coming tail first because the leader was wrapped around its tail.

RICHARD HITTINGER
